

Strongly Agree:

- A multicultural education curriculum should be in place in every school.

Agree:

- All learning programs should accommodate all children with special needs.
  - They should try their best to, especially with younger children, however as they get older it can sometimes be more difficult to as the curriculums become more based off of how a child is doing
- My curriculum should be based on each individual child's current interests.
  - You should try to include the interests of as many kids as possible, but instead of all at once take time towards each so everyone is heard and seen and lets the kids explore each others' interests
- The United States should discontinue relations with countries that engage in human rights violations.
  - I agree if the relations are too positive and aren't working towards fixing the problems. The US tends to step in, but when they sit idle for their own gain it is not ok.

Disagree:

- Families should not be expected to be involved in classroom activities.
  - They should be able to if they want to but don't need to unless able
- Some extended family members may confuse children, so they should not have a voice in raising or educating the child.
  - That is for a parent or guardian to decide, however their voices are diverse from the rest of the family as well so it depends on the parents' choices
- Media in general delivers fair and accurate accounts of events around the country.
  - Media tends to focus on one view that plays to the majority percentiles in the country, so you need to search for the other views or research on your own a lot. Luckily it is getting easier to get more views and accounts so it is getting better but it isn't at a point I would consider completely accurate or fair. Plus those who can contribute more tend to be those who have a higher social classes and are more privileged.

Strongly Disagree:

- Diversity definitely includes race and culture, but doesn't include age, ability or family make-up.
  - Every aspect of what identifies one child from another should be considered an aspect of diversity as each will affect every aspect of a kids life

Point of View:

Social Media, News, TV shows, Movies, Books, School, Jobs, Extracurricular activities, Teaching, Certain Games, Art, Music, Family, Friends, Strangers, Locations

People consistently change their views as they are exposed to more and learning more every day. Human interactions can sometimes go awry or south if someone isn't willing to be open minded, and tend to go well if people understand diversity. Anything can make you change your views, but typically talking to or listening to someone is one of the quickest ways as it is social behavior.
